Allegheny College

There's more than one way to: Build a bridge. Make a fortune. Leave your legacy. Tie a tie. Teach a child. Cure a disease. Mend Run a business. Speak truth to power. Sing an Aria. Think. And do. And be. So why would a school show you only one way to learn? Present you with a whole world of perspectives and then say — pick one. As if anyone were only one thing.

At Allegheny, we think higher learning should aim higher. So you won't focus on a single subject. We're not that kind of school. Here, we'll ask more of you than just answers. To play with old ideas, and invent something new. Every student. No matter your goals. No matter your major. We'll teach you to comprehend anything. Try everything. Fail sometimes. And ultimately succeed.

Because if you want to be the kind of person who stands out in life, you have to learn outside the lines.

Carlow University

The difference between Carlow and other universities is clear. At Carlow, we aren't satisfied to simply do well. We must also do good.

Our students, alumni, faculty, and staff seek out positive ways to apply their talents and strengths. Terms such as contribute, improve, and join in are part of the vernacular. We wake knowing the actions we put forth each day can make a meaningful impact. Carlow is not just a place for students to learn and receive a degree. It's also an incubator for goodness, service and, above all, mercy. We know that achieving personal success doesn't require us to leave others behind. In fact, we know that there is no way we can "go it alone" in order to get where we really want to go. At Carlow, we live each day knowing that if we want our world to be different, truly better, then it is up to us to make it happen. We are leaders in a merciful world. We are Carlow.

Penn State University

There's a reason Penn State consistently ranks among the top one percent of the world's universities. Across 24 campuses, our 100,000 students and 17,000 faculty and staff know the real measure of success goes beyond the classroom—it's the positive impact made on communities across the world.

Our ideals stem from our origins as Pennsylvania's sole land-grant institution, which allow us to continue to bring positive impact to humanity through our teaching, research, and engagement mission. And across the world is a community of Penn Staters—more than half a million strong—driven by that same spirit to serve our local and global communities.

From access to state-of-the-art resources to interdisciplinary pursuits in collaborative atmospheres, a Penn State degree is more than an education. The experiences and knowledge gained here will form the foundation for the lives our students build. Their contributions to the world begin with a Penn State degree.

We Are Penn State.
